

https://www.northcentralpa.com/news/dep-issues-statement-on-fluid-spill-at-well-pad-in/article_d4c905d2-c9a4-11e7-b200-9325355ee260.html

DEP Issues Statement on Fluid Spill at Well Pad in Eldred Township

Nov 14, 2017 Updated Nov 16, 2017

A statement issued today from Williamsport office of Department of Environmental Protection (DEP):

A release of filtered flowback fluid occurred November 13 on Inflection Energy's TLC well pad, in Eldred Township, Lycoming County. While the fluid was being transferred between two tanks, it overtopped the receiving tank and discharged to the well pad surface, flowing off the pad and into an adjacent unnamed tributary to Loyalsock Creek. Inflection Energy estimates the volume of the release at approximately 63,000 gallons of fluid. An environmental remediation contractor is working onsite.

DEP staff conducted field conductivity screening and collected multiple samples for analysis. The Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission has also responded to this incident. DEP does not anticipate any impacts to public drinking water supplies at this time. DEP's investigation will continue.

Saar's Disposal Service

Serving Wmspt, S Wmspt,
Duboistown, Loyalsock,
Montoursville, Linden,
Jersey Shore and Avis areas.

Residential and Commercial Container Cart Service, since 1986

Call (570) 326-4228

MORE INFORMATION

Wmspt DEP office releases Q&A about Eldred Twp spill

